Dear friends of UWC-USA,

When the school launched its initial strategic planning process six years ago, I'm sure no one thought that it would soon undergo both the most significant public health crisis in over 100 years and the largest wildfire in New Mexico history. Neither the pandemic nor the Hermit's Peak/Calf Canyon Fire were built into our strategic plan. And yet we not only survived both, but I can say with confidence that we emerged stronger.

UWC-USA is stronger, in large part, as a result of the outpouring of support from alumni, parents of alumni, friends of the school, and the community in San Miguel County. You have all served as a powerful reminder that we are not facing the challenges of the future alone, and that an ambitious strategic plan with bold goals can only succeed if we all unite behind the work.

We have chosen to highlight some of UWC-USA's volunteers in this annual report as a token of gratitude to all who have supported us through the challenges of the last few years. Those highlighted are just a few of the many, many people all around the world who make it possible for us to fulfill our mission each year.

We're also stronger because we are focused on how the challenging environment of our campus can be an impetus for more sustainable living and learning. Later in this report we profile upgrades to our transportation fleet to reduce our carbon footprint and improve overall sustainability. This is just one of the many such projects we're focused on, with efforts also underway to conserve and better manage water, improve our resilience in the face of extreme weather, and engage our students in these efforts where feasible.

I want to thank everyone for their support and encouragement over the past few years. And I want to also thank you in advance for your ongoing support as we work together to provide our students the best UWC experience possible.

My very best,

From Student to Steward: Aditya Joshi's '91 UWC-USA Journey

Aditya Joshi '91 takes on two different roles on the Board of Trustees in his commitment to UWC-USA and the UWC mission. Serving as Chair of the Finance Committee and a member of the Investment Committee, Aditya plays an important role in shaping the financial strategies that sustain the school.

"I get to work with the school's leadership team and the broader board to determine optimal budgeting and long-term financial planning options," Aditya explains, emphasizing the delicate balance between the school's commitment to financial aid, diversity, and program sustainability.

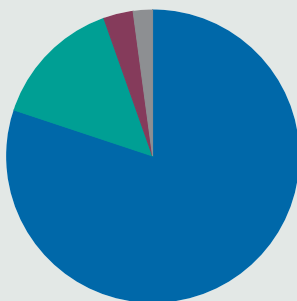

Reflecting on his volunteer work as a board member during the school's challenges in recent years, Aditya finds fulfillment in giving back. "UWC-USA is a special place that changed my life," he said.

His perspective on UWC's mission has deepened since graduation, seeing it as increasingly vital given today's complex global landscape.

"Visiting the school for Board meetings and interacting with current students inspires me," he said. "I'm more and more confident that they will become the leaders we need."

Niki Sebastian's Get-Away Experience

For over 30 years, Niki Sebastian has served as a Get-Away family for UWC-USA students, opening her home—and kitchen—to young people from around the world. The Get-Away Family program has been an integral part of the UWC-USA experience for students and community members since the opening of the school. Get-Aways, as they are called, host students for weekends or even over vacations giving them a break from the school environment. Local families get to learn about other countries and forge strong connections with students from all over the world.

“What I enjoy most has been learning to cook the cuisines of so many different countries and cultures, as part of welcoming students into my home,” Niki said. “I enjoy keeping myself informed—firsthand—on the views and concerns of young people who are likely to have roles in shaping their countries’ futures.”

Her involvement, which began as a way to maintain a connection to the international experiences of her own youth, has evolved over time. “My experience as a Get-Away has, inevitably, shifted over the more than 30 years I have been a participant in the program,” she notes. What started as cultural curiosity has deepened into something more enduring: “Over time, and especially as many of the bonds formed have endured decades after the students have graduated and moved into their adult lives, I value my participation in a network of people with shared ethics and goals despite differing cultural perspectives.”

We are enormously grateful to our alumni who gave back to UWC-USA during 2023-2024. Alumni support allows us to ensure the same transformational experience for today's students and generations of UWCers to come.

We also thank the many alumni who assist the school, especially our Annual Fund volunteers, Reunion Committee members, internship providers, National Committee volunteers, events organizers and hosts, campus speakers, Alumni-In-Residence Fellows, and others who give of their time and talent to enrich UWC-USA.

A Global Conversation: Alice Speri '04 Returns as Virtual Speaker

Alice Speri '04, a journalist focused on human rights, recently participated in UWC-USA's Distinguished Alumni Speaker series which she welcomed as a chance to reconnect. "I credit my teachers and classmates in Montezuma with helping to shape the world vision that ultimately led me to pursue my career... and returning to share that experience with current and former students was a great opportunity to reflect on that path," she said. The event also led to unexpected moments of continuity. She has maintained contact with several students since the presentation and enjoyed helping them with questions about journalism. "UWC always has a way to make the world feel a little smaller and more familiar," Alice explained.

Two decades after graduation, Alice continues to draw from her UWC experience. "While the world can feel unfathomably bleak at times — and as a journalist I often feel like I have a front-row seat to the worst of it — I tap into the energy and idealism of my UWC days almost daily." Staying in touch with classmates and other alumni keeps that connection alive.

Plugging In:

UWC-USA's Step Toward Sustainable Transportation

UWC-USA has begun transitioning its vehicle fleet from gasoline-powered to plug-in hybrid vehicles, with plans to move toward fully electric options as technology and infrastructure allow. The shift reflects the school's long-term sustainability goals, though the transition is shaped by the realities of the school's remote location. Most electric vehicles still lack the range to support longer trips to Santa Fe or Albuquerque without extended charging stops.

Currently, the school operates a Polaris Ranger electric vehicle for use by the security team and has expanded its plug-in hybrid fleet to include two Toyota RAV4 Primes, two Chrysler Pacificas, a Toyota Prius Prime, a Volvo S60, and a Honda CR-V hybrid. These vehicles support both regular campus operations and the newly introduced academic excursions, where small groups of students explore Northern New Mexico as part of their studies.

According to Bob Nash, UWC-USA's Senior Director of Operations and Safety, "UWC-USA's fleet needs to both support the needs of the academic program and strive to meet the school's sustainability objectives. When the school finally secures solar panels to take advantage of the abundant solar power," Bob said, "we'll be able to charge our plugin hybrids and EVs with electricity from the solar arrays."
